

Aircraft Materials Management Training Course

Registration Deadline : 18 May 2018

Course No. AC110-2018

One of the biggest challenges faced by today's commercial airlines is to ensure the highest possible on-time performance at minimum cost. Maintaining an effective and efficient inventory supply chain will be instrumental in achieving these seemingly conflicting objectives.

This 5-day course is developed to provide a solid foundation for the inventory and procurement professionals engaged in the aviation industry by combining the basic concepts, key processes and application of such concepts to the full spectrum of aviation material management. In order to enable the candidates to reinforce and effectively apply what they have learned from the course, individual or group exercises and case studies will also be provided.

Duration : 28 May—1 June 2018 (Monday - Friday )

Location : Hong Kong International Aviation Academy, Asia World Centre, 6th Floor , Rm 608, 1 Sky Plaza Road, Hong Kong International Airport (might be subject to change)

Organiser : Linken Capital Aviation Services Limited (LCAS)

Co-Organiser : Hong Kong International Aviation Academy (HKIAA)

Maximum Number of Participants : 30

Who should attend : This course is suitable for aviation materials management / procurement specialists who require an overall understanding of the aircraft spares supply chain, component acceptance standards under HKCAD regulations and the major inventory related technical and non-technical manuals/documents, materials management functions and provisioning models to facilitate their materials planning to support both the EIS and normal operations at minimum cost.
